Fires, flood shape year

BY RICHARD MEEK

Fire and water provided the defining moments in Hancock County this past year.

On a chilly November evening, fire engulfed Diamondhead Country Club. Flames from the spectacular blaze could be seen from as far away as Pearlinton and Long Beach.

Although crews responded in a matter of minutes, the building was destroyed. By year's end, crews had begun removing the remains.

Fires also destroyed a floral and beauty shop, and a long-time pharmacy in Bay St. Louis, a Waveland bed and breakfast, and hundreds of acres in rural Hancock County. One man lost his life in early fall when his small house in Waveland caught fire, and another man was killed in December when his house trailer burned.

Water also grabbed the headlines, as the Flood of '95 in the spring nearly washed away an entire subdivision. The county was deluged with 27 inches of rain over a two-day period, which caused widespread flooding in the county, most severe in the Jourdan River Shores subdivision. Rising waters nearly washed away the Reef Restaurant on Highway 603.

Although the county felt the wrath of spring floods, it was spared the fury of Hurricanes Erin and Opal. At one time, Hancock County was in the sights of both hurricanes, but both drifted to the east and slammed into Pensacola and Navarre Beach, Fla.

The hurricane threats forced shutdowns of casinos all along the Gulf Coast, but none were moved to safer ground.

Other events which shaped the county in 1995:

--It was reported that raw sewage has been seeping into the Pearl and Jourdan rivers and many other bayous and streams. The county does not have a sewage ordinance in place, thus making it easy for residents to install inadequate sewage systems, or no system at all.

--Gang-related, drive-by shootings in Buccaneer Park disrupted the Fourth of July weekend. Fortunately, no one was killed in the shooting. The suspects were traced to a gang in Picayune. Officials said the motive centered around a dispute over a teenage female.

--Casino Magic Chief Executive Officer Dual Cooper was replaced in December.

--Inmates staged two successful jailbreaks from the Hancock County Justice Facility. The two jailbreaks were the firsts since the facility opened in 1987. All of the escapees have been captured.

--Bay St. Louis Fire Chief Andrew Lizana resigned after a long career with the department.

--Also resigning was Ethel Favre, who served 50 years with the state of Mississippi. She is the mother of Bay St. Louis Mayor Eddie Favre.

--Reports surfaced that a low-income retirement development was being planned for Diamondhead. Controversy erupted in the posh subdivision over the proposed facility. Threats were even phoned into the developer's office.

As of year's end, there was no further word on the development.

--With much fanfare, the refurbished Hancock County Library in Bay St. Louis was opened in the spring. The opening was the conclusion of a refurbishing project that took several months.

--The Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission voted to apply for Port Bienville Industrial Park to become an extension of a Foreign Trade Zone now operating in the Port at Gulfport. If

Elections stun supervisors in '95

BY ED LEPOMA

Possibly the biggest news of the year for Hancock County came at the Board of Supervisors' last meeting of the year in mid-December.

The outgoing supervisors were told that Hancock County and an unnamed site in South Carolina were the top two locations being considered for a multi-million dollar manufacturing plant.

If the plant locates here, a total investment of $1.1 billion is expected over the next 10 years, and it would ultimately employ about 750 people.

The Board acted on a request by the Port and Harbor Commission, and the governor's office, and issued $5 million in revenue bonds for roadway and other improvements that would be needed at the county's industrial park at Port Bienville.

The governor, working through the Mississippi Department of Economic and Community Development, has also pledged $33 million in incentive funds to lure the plant to Mississippi.

The winner is expected to be announced within a few days after the new year.

Although the five supervisors are leaving office Jan. 2 on a high note, there appeared little to boast about in 1995. The five-member Board left many major decisions to incoming supervisors.

Of course, 1995 was an election year, and three supervisors and the Chancery Court Clerk surprised supporters when they announced they would not seek re-election.

The decision saw a large field of Democratic and Republican candidates lining up for the vacated clerk's seat, and to replace District 1 Supervisor Robert Peterson, District 2 Supervisor Dolph Kellar, and District 4 Supervisor Wilmer Seymour.

The August 8 primary gave some hint of voter's displeasure with the Board's action, or lack of it, over the last four years.

District 5 Supervisor and Board President Mike Ladner was defeated in his bid for a third term by political newcomer Philip Moran, who garnered more than 50 percent of the vote. Moran later beat out a Republican challenger in the November general election to win the seat.

Incumbent District 3 Supervisor Howard Lizana held on through the Democratic primaries, but lost his seat to Republican Lisa Cowand in November.

With Cowand's victory, Hancock County will see five new supervisors sworn into office, and a new Chancery Court Clerk.

Probably one of the more trying times for Supervisors came last September when the owners of the Jubilee Casino at Bayou Caddy first protested taxes assessed on its property and operations, then announced in October it would send its Jubilee barge to Greenville, Miss., and it would be replaced here by a smaller ship.

Fortunately, unlike New Orleans, the county does not include estimated gambling revenue into its yearly operational budget, so county services and projects were not imperiled.

But it did stand to lose taxes already assessed on the Jubilee for 1994 and 1995 if the barge left without a payment plan. Those revenues are usually shared on a pro-rata basis by the School District, the Sheriff's office, the city-county library system, and area fire departments, and used to complement their operating budgets.

Finally, after some hard-nosed negotiations, a compromise was reached.

The Alpha Hospitality Corp., which owns the Jubilee, agreed to post surety bonds totaling $403,000, representing the property tax amounts due the county for 1994 and 1995.

The Jubilee officially sailed out of town near the end of October, leaving the majority of its workforce of 660 temporarily unemployed.

The smaller Cotton Club vessel is now berthed at the Bayou Caddy site, and it officially reopened as the Jubilation Dec. 21.

Stennis Airport and Port Bienville also went through some lean times in 1995.

The Jubilee and Casino Magic halted its charter flights coming into the airport, and opted instead to use the Gulfport/Biloxi Regional Airport.

And, Supervisors balked at letting the Port and Harbor Commission reinstate property tax millage for much-needed infrastructure improvements at the airport and Port Bienville.

However, with the help of a $350,000 grant from the Federal Aeronautics Administration, the airport was able to install new high-intensity lighting on the runway.

The Board of Supervisors adopted an operating budget last October that was $16.4 million, up only slightly from 1995, but they did manage to provide 50 cents an hour raises to county employees, and there was no raise in property taxes.

Spring flood

A heavy dousing of rain in May created widespread flooding throughout Hancock County. One of the hardest hit areas was the Jourdan River Shores subdivision. Near the subdivision, the Reef Restaurant (above) was nearly washed away by the rising waters. (Echo staff photo by Ellis C. Cuevas)

OLA Prayer Service

Our Lady Academy Campus Ministry sponsored its annual Christmas Prayer Service Dec. 18. The ministry group chose as its theme, "Wear Lights in Your Heart Instead of on Your Trees."

The words were taken from Sister Macrina Wiederkehr's two poems entitled "An Advent Meditation Sealed with a Promise" and "Christmas Shopping." The two poems were incorporated into the prayer service.

For the second year, the Campus Ministry invited OLA students to bring gifts for agencies the Campus Ministry works with during the year. Colored hearts, representing the different agencies, were distributed during the Advent prayer service.

Students and faculty brought Christmas gifts for the Welfare Department of Hancock County for foster children, the Hancock Food Pantry, South Mississippi Regional Center in Long Beach, Morning Star Pregnancy Center in Gulfport, the South Mississippi AIDS Task Force in Biloxi, and Project Arise, a Mercy Mission in Las Milpas, Texas.

Officials to be sworn in Tuesday

BY ED LEPOMA
Newly elected officials in Hancock County will be officially sworn in Tuesday in ceremonies at the courthouse on Main Street.

The public is invited to the 9 a.m. ceremonies, which will include a brief reception, followed by the first official meeting of the county's Board of Supervisors.

Five county supervisors will take the oath of office for the first time, along with a new Clerk of Chancery Court. Other more experienced politicians will begin serving their second, third, fourth, fifth or sixth consecutive terms.

Timothy A. "Tim" Kellar, 38, will take over as Chancery Court. E. Michael Nicaise had served in that position for the last 16 years, and decided not to seek re-election.

Kellar, son of longtime District 2 Supervisor Alton D. (Dolph) Kellar, had never before run for public office.

The Chancery Court clerk also serves as the county administrator and, in that capacity, will work closely with the five-member Board of Supervisors.

The Board is a diverse group of four businessmen and one woman, whose average age is 40. The four men, all Democrats, have never held public office before.

In recent interviews with the Echo, new supervisors have promised to take "a business approach" to issues, and to work together as a team for the whole of the county.

Lyonie "Jeep" Ladner, at 54, is the oldest elected to the new board. A plumber by trade, he will represent District 1.

Rodrick (Rocky) Pullman will represent District 2. He is 41, from Pearlinton, and works as a tug boat captain for Johnson Controls World Systems Inc. at the Stennis Space Center.

Lisa Coward, 39, is the only female and the only Republican elected to the Board. She will represent District 3.

Coward is returning to the District seat she first held in 1989, when she served the remainder of an unexpired term. Formerly, Coward represented Ward I on the Bay St. Louis City Council from 1985 to 1988, and she was Council President in 1988.

Steve Seymour, 32, will be the youngest person on the Board of Supervisors. He will represent District 4, and is succeeding his father, Wilmer Seymour, who choose not to seek re-election after serving for the last eight years.

Philip E. Moran, 34, will represent District 5. He owns his own pest control business, and his parents (now deceased) taught all their lives in Hancock County Schools. His grandfather, Joe Moran Sr., was a three-term supervisor in Hancock County before the Great Depression.

Sheriff Ronald A. (Ronnie) Peterson will be sworn in for a fifth consecutive term. He is one of the few county sheriffs in the state to serve that long a period consecutively.

Terrell "Terry" Randolph, 59, will be returning as Superintendent of the Hancock County School District. He was first elected to a four-year term from 1976 to 1980, then lost a re-election bid by two votes.

In 1982, he regained the seat, and served until 1992 when he lost a close race to Myrna Bourgeois. In the August Democratic primaries, Randolph this time defeated Bourgeois, and went on to defeat Republican challenger Donald E. Hillman in the November general election.

County Tax Assessor Edward D. (Eddie) Murtagh will be starting a sixth term. He served seven years as Chief Deputy Tax Assessor, then was elected to an unexpired two-year term in 1978 when assessor George E. Heitzmann retired. He has been consistently re-elected since then, and is past president of the Mississippi State Assessors/Tax Collectors Association.

Pamela Thomas Metzler will begin her third consecutive term as clerk of Circuit Court. She recently completed a term as president of the Circuit Clerks Association of Mississippi.

Norma C. Stiglet, will also begin her third consecutive term as county coroner.

Justice Court Judge West Lee B. Klein will begin his third term, and East Justice Court Judge Joseph R. (Joe) Dobson, his fourth term.

Gary L. Bennett will begin his first term as Constable West, and Leo E. Ladner, his second term as Constable East.

Hwy. 603 woes continue in 1995

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Motorists patiently puttered around barricades and slammed on their brakes periodically as they negotiated another year of Highway 603 construction.

By the close of 1995, the beleaguered construction project remained unfinished, and controversy surrounding the work had made major news.

A December 1994 breach of contract suit, filed by the contractor, sought $3 million in damages from state transportation officials. SCI, Inc., claimed the state failed to ensure that utility lines were removed from the project's pathway, causing construction delays that cost the contractor millions.

That lawsuit made its way through the court system faster than construction crews could wrap up their work: a jury awarded SCI $2,370,000; a judge added $2,282,498 to that.

With a total judgment of $4,653,386 against the state, officials vowed to appeal to the Supreme Court before paying a penny of the damage award to SCI.

In addition, state officials say they may well take some utility owners to court to recover any damages the state may end up owing SCI.

The Highway 603 project began three years ago, under a $7.8 million contract. It was to have been completed in July 1994. Officials say work should wrap up this spring, but there are no firm estimates of when completion will occur.

Ultimately, it will provide a four-lane, divided highway between Highway 90 and Stennis International Airport.

Boudin Waste signs Picayune contract

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS

Boudin Waste & Recycling signed a five-year contract for garbage pickup and disposal for the City of Picayune to begin January 1, 1996.

The new contract involves over 3,800 residences, Joey Boudin, company owner said.

Boudin's Waste & Recycling now has contracts with Hancock County, the cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland and several area contracts in St. Tammany Parish, La.

Another city scheduled to sign a contract for garbage and waste disposal with Boudin is Poplarville.

Boudin said Poplarville's officials have approved his company's services, and a contract should be signed to begin in that city on February 1, 1996.

Boudin Waste & Recycling, with the new Picayune contract, now has 30 full-time employees, of which all are Hancock County residents.

Boudin said, "Recommendations from Bay St. Louis, Waveland and Hancock County's elected officials helped his company in securing the Picayune contract."

Because of the new contract, Boudin said his company has had to purchase two additional collection trucks.

Bay St. Louis year begins with near disaster

BY MARY G. SEILEY

The year started off with a near disaster for the city of Bay St. Louis when 1,650 natural gas customers in the city and 500 in Henderson: Point abruptly found themselves without service.

Officials scrambled to determine the cause of the pressure loss, only to discover that a safety valve had been inadvertently turned off by Koch Gateway workers at a facility in Pass Christian.

That meant city workers had to fan out throughout the city, turning off every meter in the system. As night fell, crews buzzed through the streets with flashlights, locating and disconnecting gas meters at residences and businesses.

By dawn, they were re-tracing their steps -- reconnecting meters and re-lighting furnaces and hot water heaters inside homes.

While there were no injuries during the crisis, city officials said the incident had all the ingredients of a woeful story: explosions and fires could easily have occurred, had the situation not been handled correctly. The winter night and following day were, mercifully, uncommonly warm, defusing the impact of the lack of heat for hundreds of homeowners.

Koch Gateway, the city's gas supplier, accepted blame for the mishap and reimbursed the city over $25,000 in expenses.

Other potential damage to the city itself was averted as three seawall protection projects crawled off the drawing boards and became reality. U.S. Army Corps of Engineers contracts were let to stabilize the Beach Boulevard shoreline, preventing what officials said was inevitable collapse of the roadway due to erosion.

Augmenting that work, city officials saw a long-sought beach construction project come to fruition: sand was pumped from an area north of the Highway 90 bridge to create almost one mile of new beach, south of the highway.

While few disputed the need for the project, it was hardly without controversy. City officials struggled to obtain federal and state permits that were essential for the project, although no objections had been anticipated.

A high-level retirement within the Corps left the permits in limbo for weeks, and officials there had to re-study the entire project before blessing it.

Meanwhile, there was some confusion among Corps officials concerning local sentiment toward the project. Controversy over an unrelated project to build a shoreline protection structure north of Bay View Court muddled the waters temporarily -- although the two projects were, essentially, unrelated.

On the eve of the construction, city officials prevailed in a quest for financial help from the county level to pay for the $700,000 project. But that happened only after the mayor threatened to abort some politically popular programs if the county didn't find the funds to chip in for the beach project.

Once the pumping began, city officials were enraged to be hit by objections from one commercial property owner who contested the city's right to create a beach in that locale. The city skipped the section in question, while the ownership issue was hurriedly researched on the local and state level. By the time the city was satisfied it had the right to proceed in the area, the contractors had finished their work and disconnected their pipelines.

Still, officials said the project helped to avert looming disaster from continued erosion of the shoreline, and create a new public beach that's hoped to enhance tourism in the historic business area.

Inside City Hall, the year saw scores of citizens turn out for zoning meetings, with a series of controversial proposals under consideration. And there was a year full of debate over the bigger picture of the city's overall future.

A comprehensive development plan -- the blueprint for a new zoning ordinance -- was debated again and again in meetings and public forums. But it became so mired in controversy that officials essentially removed the document from debate until early 1996.

Officials vow to push the paper work back to the front burner, and culminate a years-long, expensive quest for a development plan and zoning ordinance.

Meanwhile, a major redevelopment plan was launched, which city officials hope will fuel spinoff restoration in the city's historic heart: renovation of the former CSX depot began in November. The two-story, Spanish mission-style structure ultimately will serve as a civic center, transportation hub and visitor information center. Upstairs, it will house a significant genealogical library.

That project, funded primarily with federal grants, was but one to get the go-ahead for Bay St. Louis in 1995.

Federal officials also approved grants the city wanted to build a pedestrian walkway and bike path system, and a new senior citizens center.

In addition, the city landed a grant to upgrade some dilapidated owner-occupied homes.

Controversy in Waveland

BY RICHARD MEEK

Year One of a new political climate in Waveland was marred by controversy between the mayor and one of the city's aldermen.

Mayor John Mason, the city's first-ever full-time mayor, and alderman Jay Fleuret spent much of the year squabbling and throwing verbal barbs at each other in both public meetings and behind closed doors. The pair argued on issues that included the mayor's mileage, cellular phones, water meters, budgets and street lights. By year's end, the rest of the aldermen were able to distance themselves from the lingering Mason-Fleuret feud.

The year began on a sour note for some in the city, on a high note for others. City Clerk Betty Phillips and city employees June Throulliet and Mike Barnes were fired. Deborah Conravey, the city's comptroller, took on the added responsibility of City Clerk. Lisa Planchard was later hired as purchasing manager.

Phillips later filed an age discrimination suit against the city, which is still pending.

But it was the Mason-Fleuret standoff that provided the political fireworks. Fleuret complained that the city did not need to furnish cellular phones to nine employees.

Fleuret, an agent for Cellular South, also complained that the city was paying too much for cellular service with Century Cellnet. However, the city is unable to contract with Cellular South because of Fleuret's connection with the company.

Fleuret also protested to Mason receiving mileage for travel inside of Waveland. That debate became so heated that Mason finally volunteered to pay for mileage inside of the city. However, Fleuret still objected, saying the mayor should not get mileage for traveling to Bay St. Louis. The board disagreed.

A budget fiasco only intensified the tenuous relationship between Fleuret and the mayor. Originally, the aldermen approved a budget that called for spending $600,000 of the city's $800,000 in cash reserve.

The aldermen claimed they did not realize that was in the budget they adopted. It was later amended.

A water meter ordinance passed in the summer triggered another flareup in the fall. One of Fleuret's rental properties was found to be in violation of the new ordinance, and he petitioned to be grandfathered in.

In other key issues: — Beginning Monday, Waveland citizens will begin paying a $6 garbage fee.

— A library controversy erupted in late summer when it was reported renovation of the Waveland Library called for removal of all of the facility's hardcover books. Under intense pressure from the citizens and city officials, library officials agreed to return the books to the library, which has been transformed into a literacy center.

"CUEVAS' QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Where has 1995 gone - as today is New Year's Eve for 1996.

It seems we were just bringing in 1995 a few months ago.

There were a lot of happenings in this area during 1995 and the Echo's staff has compiled several in stories and photos in this issue, the last of 1995.

The year 1995 is now history and what has happened, the way it happened, etc. cannot be changed.

We now have to look forward to a new year and ways of solving some of the problems the cities and county face.

There are a lot of new faces in county government for 1996 and these elected officials need the help and encouragement of all residents.

Among some of the issues for the state, county and city government and not necessarily in order of importance are the following:

- Zoning throughout the county.
- Sewerage through the county.
- Building code through the county.
- Completion of Highway 603's four-laning.
- Landfill site in county finalized.

-Landing of a major industry in Hancock County along with expansion of existing industries.

-Further utilization by industry of the Mississippi Ammunition Plant's buildings at the John C. Stennis Space Center.

- Increased test scores at local high schools.
- Lower number of dropouts in schools.
- And this list could go on and on.

Our elected officials will need a lot of help from the residents in order to solve our many problems, they cannot do it all alone.

Here's hoping 1996 will be a good year for each and everyone of you.

It was a tragedy in Pearlinton last weekend in which a 14-year-old was killed while riding a go-cart.

Even after the tragedy I have been told there are still several youngsters running the streets on go-carts.

This is a very dangerous and go-carts are not allowed to run on public roads.

Parents need to realize the dangers of go-carts, three-wheelers and four-wheelers when they make them available to youngsters.

Christmas tree recycling is becoming very popular in the area, as it is across the nation.

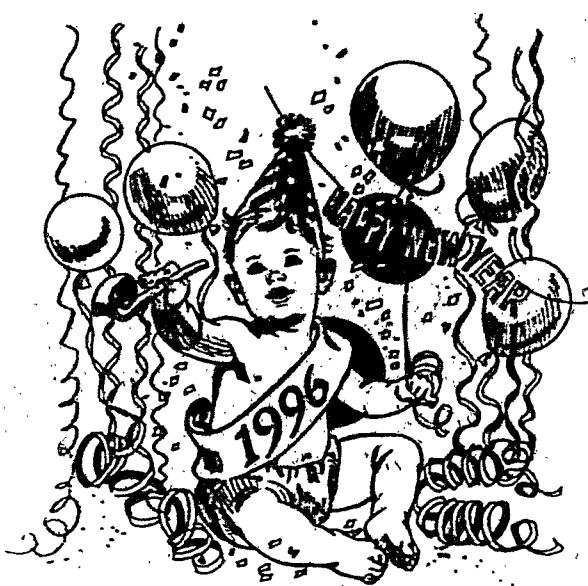

Many areas like ours use the mulch from the ground-up trees for flower beds, while the state of Louisiana uses the trees for marsh restoration.

The city of Bay St. Louis Public Works Department will have its chipper operating on Wednesdays and Saturdays through the month of January. Residents of the Bay need to place their Christmas trees on the side of the road the Tuesday or Thursday night before the chipper is scheduled to arrive.

This is an annual service by Bay St. Louis to its residents.

Others can have their trees recycled by placing them in a roped-off section by the Hancock County Civic Center, Longfellow Road.

By having Christmas trees recycled, a lot of landfill space is saved.

Wishing You And Yours, A Happy And Healthy New Year

CHAMBERGRAM

FROM THE DIRECTOR:

As the year comes to a close, we can't help but look back at the activities that took place during the year. It was a phenomenal year with the office responding to more than three times the number of inquiries filed in 1994 (not to mention more than the previous four years combined).

The Chamber also coordinated more than 30 grand openings for new, expanded or relocated businesses in Hancock County and initiated the organization of Partners For Stennis - a four-county/parish economic development group to enhance the development and promotion of Stennis Space Center.

Probably the most notable accomplishment is the creation of the Tourism Development Bureau as an arm of the Chamber to deal specifically with the promotion and development of Hancock County with regard to tourism and tourism-related activity.

The manner in which this was accomplished, through diligence, patience and commitment, has been praised highly by many throughout the county as well as people in the surrounding communities.

Many have stated that they wish their community could reach agreements on important issues in such an admirable fashion. I think credit goes to the individuals involved in the process: Ellis Cuevas, Jim Henrie, Bill Lady and Scott Lemon. A lot of hard work and determination to see this become a reality was the driving force, and I think Hancock County is fortunate to have people who can work through issues in such a professional way.

Another item of significance is the way that the Port & Harbor has brought the community into the process (as much as possible) with their prospects.

Hal Walters and his staff works toward developing a relationship between the prospect and the community to enhance the county's standing in the selection process. This approach appears to work as Hancock County has made it to the "finals" on at least a couple of projects this year.

We should all be proud of this as well as they way the Board of Supervisors demonstrated their commitment to the continued growth and development of Hancock County through the commitment of $5 million in general obligation bonds as an incentive to one of these prospects to locate here.

This commitment, along with a hefty commitment by the State of Mississippi should show them that we are serious about their business.

Hopefully the first of the coming year will bring some great tidings with Port Bienville being the recipient of at least one new tenant. We have our fingers crossed!

1996 Chamber President Scott Lemon has made his appointments for committee chairpersons. They are: Beautification, Betsy Ashman; Economic Development, Hal Walters; Education, Ron Magee; and Tourism Development Bureau, Bill Lady.

He has also selected his appointees to the board to serve a one-year term: Susie Beatrice, Alcan Cable, Brehm Bell, Attorney; Catherine Green, Casino Magic; and Rich Labatut, Infinity Graphics. Congratulations to these people on their selection for these positions. We wish them the best in the coming year!

One last thing - we are in the process of updating all of the information available from our office. One of the things that we provide is an organization list. We need your help to update this info by letting us know who the correct contact for the organizations is.

If you would please announce at your organization meetings that we need this information at their earliest convenience, it would sure help us out a lot in updating this list. Thanks!

Until next month,
Cindy Vernon

Chamber sponsors Christmas tree recycling again

During the month of December, thousands of Christmas trees will be used throughout Hancock County to brighten the holiday season. These trees, when disposed of, will occupy a large amount of valuable landfill space.

Now, thanks to Mississippi Power Company, the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, Asplundh Tree Experts, and many others, you can be a part of the solution to this problem by recycling your Christmas tree.

The mulch from the recycled trees will be used throughout the county for various beautification projects.

Please remove all lights, ornaments and tinsel and bring the tree to the north end of the Hancock County Civic Center parking lot on Longfellow Road any time between now and Jan. 6 and place it in the roped-off area.

Recyclers may stop by the Hancock Chamber office at 412 Hwy. 90, Suite 6, after Jan. 6 to get a seedling, compliments of Mississippi Power.

Thanks for your support in this important conservation project.

COMMENTARY

Tisdale's future may be in doubt

BY RICHARD MEEK

Bay St. Louis Mayor Eddie Favre's appointment of Cleveland Williams to the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District may mean that Paul Tisdale's days as superintendent are numbered.

A standing 2-2 stalemate concerning Tisdale's fate as superintendent will be broken one way or the other with the addition of Williams, who is apparently still stewing over what he perceives as unfair treatment from Tisdale several years ago.

Williams, who retired after a 25-plus-year career in the school district several years ago, was appointed when absentee member Tracy Joseph finally turned in her resignation on Dec. 19.

Joseph was considered to be a swing vote on several issues, including Tisdale's future, but had not attended a meeting since July. She gave birth to a child, and since has said privately she did not have time to devote to the board. Her departure has been imminent, and Williams' appointment has been common knowledge for several weeks.

A vote on Tisdale's status may come as early as Jan. 8 when the board meets again, but probably no later than February, as dictated by a political timetable. Board President Linda Penrose, Tisdale's biggest adversary, is up for re-election in early March, and should she lose, the pendulum may swing again 3-2 in Tisdale's favor.

Currently, Penrose is joined by Frank Perniciaro in the anti-Tisdale camp. Perniciaro, who also maintains privately he was treated unfairly by the superintendent, was elected to the board in March, defeating incumbent and Tisdale supporter Jim Wilcox.

The superintendent has had the support of Board Secretary David Turcotte and Richard Flowers.

Tisdale has sparred with Penrose on several key issues this year, ranging from cheerleaders to dissection of cats. But the superintendent's Waterloo may be his recommendation not to rehire Bay Junior High Principal James Baldree.

Last February, the nonrenewal of Baldree's contract was just one of several personnel moves recommended by Tisdale, and approved by the board. Baldree appealed to an independent hearing officer, who upheld Tisdale's recommendation.

How Penrose lobbied hard for Baldree, and several months later the board reversed its earlier decision, and he was reinstated. With the combining of the junior high and high schools, the only slot open to Baldree was assistant principal at Bay High, a position he currently holds, and one which Penrose claims was a "demotion."

Since the Baldree fiasco, an icy relationship has existed between Tisdale and Penrose. The superintendent has pushed for an extension of his contract, which runs through the 1996-97 school year, but it has yet to come to a vote.

A vote to oust Tisdale would be short-sighted by the board. Although controversial at times, the superintendent has displayed the courage to make difficult decisions to bring the school district into the 20th century. Changing long-standing policies, procedures, and in some cases, personnel, is not easy, but Tisdale has always acted in a way that he felt was in the best interest of the district. Translated, that means in the best interests of the students, and isn't that who a school board is supposed to serve?

If Tisdale goes down, he would not be the only casualty during the next few months. One probably scenario would be the scrapping of the combining of the junior and high school, which is in its first year. Under that scenario, it is conceivable Baldree would return as junior high principal.

Some key personnel may also be dismissed.

Board members should lay aside their personal axes and make decisions that will best serve the students. But when politics are involved, that is wishful thinking.

Navy awards $1.4 billion to build LDH-7 at Ingalls

The Navy awarded Ingalls Shipbuilding in Pascagoula a $1.4 billion contract to build the LDH-7 amphibious assault ship, U.S. Senator Trent Lott announced.

Ingalls has built the previous six LHDs ordered by the Navy and will begin construction on the LHD-7 in early 1996, Lott said.

"The LHD is the heart and soul of the Marine Corps' amphibious assault capability," Lott said. "For Ingalls, exercising this contract option means an average of 1,600 jobs over the next four years. Next to an aircraft carrier, the LHD is the largest ship in the Navy's fleet."

LHD-7 was authorized and funded in both the Senate defense bills but no in either of the House's two defense bills. Lott, the chairman of the Strategic Forces Subcommittee, successfully argued that LHD-7 should be included in the final defense authorization bill when differences between the House and Senate bills were negotiated.

The Defense Authorization Bill has been approved by the Congress and was sent to the President Dec. 22. The President has said he will veto the bill.

"The President's veto does not stop the Navy from awarding the LHD-7 contract, however, because LHD is not a new program," Lott said.

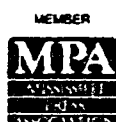

A total of four LHDs are now in service, and two more are scheduled for commissioning in 1997 and 1998. A seventh LHD is needed to meet the Marine Corps' requirement of 12 fully capable ARGs.

approved — the process will take about a year — the industrial park would become a lucrative site for international manufacturers.

Also at Port Bienville, a hazardous spill of the chemical ferrous sulfate closed nearby waters for a period of time. The chemical leaked off of a barge that had been sitting idle in the industrial park's waters for months.

The spill forced a change in policy procedures governing businesses in Port Bienville.

Plans were announced in June for the Waveland Resort Inn to become a Holiday Inn. By year's end, the construction process was well underway, but an official opening date had not been announced.

Russian journalist Genadi Gerasimov visited the county in August. He and his family attended a reception at the library in Bay St. Louis, and sailed the Mississippi Sound on a private boat.

Gerasimov also spoke on the current political winds in Russia to an attentive audience at the Stennis Space Center.

The federal government budget fiasco has taken its toll at Stennis. During the shutdown, only key personnel have been reporting to work.

A rail service connecting Bay St. Louis to New Orleans will begin in June and continue for a three-month trial period. City officials are hoping to increase tourism business in the historic downtown Bay St. Louis district.

Waveland police were involved in a scrap with entertainer Merle Haggard during the summer. Haggard, in town to perform at Casino Magic, was questioned for what police officials called "suspicious actions" in a parking lot of a local grocery store. No charges were filed.

The giant Schwegmann's grocery chain bought out the National chain. The National store was closed in Waveland, and later re-opened in the fall as a Schwegmann's. The store is planning further expansion.

Also on the supermarket scene, Sav-A-Center opened its Waveland location in the spring. Opening weekend drew huge crowds to the store, located at the busy intersection of Highways 603 and 90.

Other significant grand openings were Taco Bell, State Farm Insurance Claim Center, Gulf Coast Mental Health Center and KSI Manufacturing.

Expansions were finally completed at North Bay and Waveland elementary schools. The North Bay project came under fire for an unusual design, which caused a two-month construction delay.

The Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District pri-vativized its transportation service when it signed a contract with Laidlaw, Inc. The district is paying Laidlaw nearly $400,000 a year to transport its students, which represents a savings. Two new busses were purchased by the district for the purpose of transporting athletic teams.

The school district commenced a search for a site suitable to construct a new school. A site near the current high school may be impractical because of wetland considerations.

McLeod Park Ranger Alton Lumpkin was arrested in July on two counts of sexual battery and one count of fondling.

Finally, the Hancock High cheerleaders will enjoy national publicity tonight when they perform at the Sugar Bowl in the Louisiana Superdome.

Supervisors

Taxwise, the county's share of gaming revenues declined, but money collected through property taxes were above projections.

With the two-month closure of the Jubilee, and some decline in the numbers visiting Casino Magic, the county's 3.2 percent of gaming revenues totaled $1,584,893 through Sept. 95. This was almost $400,000 less than the $1,962,934 in revenues generated for the same period ending in Sept. 94.

Ad Valorem taxes collected so far this year amounted to $8,141,000. This compares with projections of $7,882,000, for 1994, and next year property tax revenues are projected to total $8,103,000.

Countywide, monies have been allocated or being held in escrow accounts for several beachfront projects and other county construction, but little progress has been made to get several developments off the drawing board.

The county did contribute $375,000 towards refurbishing the sand beach in Bay St. Louis. It spent another $110,000 to complete public parking lots at the foot of Washington Avenue in Bay St. Louis and between Terrace Drive and Coleman Avenue in Waveland.

But, comfort stations planned for the beachfronts in Bay St. Louis and Waveland are being redesigned after supervisors balked at a $1 million price tag put on both.

The county and the cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland are also yet to draw down any monies from a $1.2 million federal grant that is available for a pedestrian walkway and bike path between the two cities.

However, major work to pump in a new sand beach and to shore up the beachfront in Bay St. Louis have held up the long-awaited project.

The County also has in escrow $500,000 in Tidelands funds and another $260,000 from the sale of its marina property to begin construction of another marina proposed at the foot of Pleasure Street in Bayou Caddy. The project has been delayed while the county's attorney is attempting to negotiate a sales price with the major property owner in the area.

In a special meeting on Dec. 28, Supervisors presented a check for $200,000 for the purchase of 80 acres of land owned by Mary Cassis in the Kiln-DeLisle area. It will be developed as a Horse Show-Livestock Arena, and run by the Equine and Livestock Facility Board.

The county has also spent $85,000 to purchase a one-acre tract of land and a building on Hwy. 603 where it planned to house new administrative offices for the School District. It set aside another $40,000 for renovations, but latest estimates are it would take at least $120,000 more to bring the building up to code and put in the office space required.

The county is also sitting on a $110,000 state Division of Public Safety Grant to build a Juvenile Detention Center, but supervisors haven't found a location for it, and say they haven't worked out funding for its daily operations.

Some help is on the way for the county's neglected and abused children, too. Last year, a group of volunteers founded Hope Haven, a non-profit organization whose purpose is to provide a home for these children, who are now shipped out to shelters in Hattiesburg and elsewhere.

Through various fund-raising efforts, the group has purchased a house in Waveland, and it is undergoing renovation. Supervisors have contributed $15,000 to help Hope Haven with initial expenses.

Shortly after the beginning of the Oct. 1 fiscal year, supervisors gave the Sheriff's Office the go-ahead to enter into a lease-purchase agreement and spend almost $200,000 for 10 new patrol cars and outfit them with special equipment.

Later that month, the Sheriff's Office was thrown into a temporary turmoil after announcing it had arrested the director and two other officers on the county's multi-agency Drug Task Force on extortion charges.

Since posting bond, James Whitson of Biloxi, was found hanged to death, and his death officially ruled a suicide. The agency's director, Terry Eley, and David Parker, both of Bay St. Louis, are out on bond, awaiting trial, but Sheriff Ronnie Peterson has not yet reorganized the special agency.

Healthwise, the bad news overshadowed the good news for county residents.

Last September, Coastal Family Health Center closed its doors in Hancock County, saying it was costing too much to keep its clinic open in Bay St. Louis.

The move has forced more than 2,500 of Hancock's elderly and poor to go to clinics that Coastal kept open in Harrison County, but there are efforts underway to reopen the clinic here.

However, the county-supported Hancock Medical Center completed an 8,000-square foot expansion of its outpatient and emergency facilities.

The expansion provided a larger radiology and surgical area, new cardiopulmonary testing facilities, and additional recovery rooms.

Probably the largest county project put on hold was a $10 million proposal to provide sewerage service to Shoreline Park and the Pearlinton area.

At their last meeting Dec. 15, the outgoing Board of Supervisors held a public hearing on the proposal, but left it up to the new board to make a decision on the county's Solid Wastewater District's request to annex the area.

The District can get 75 percent federal funding for the project, but some residents have balked at the $35 monthly sewerage fee that has been proposed, in addition to the cost for linking up to county sewer lines.

Also left unsettled is whether the county should go forward with plans to open a landfill in the rural Standard Community.

It now leases 41 acres in Standard for a rubbish site, and has contracted with Trans-American Waste, Inc. to operate it.

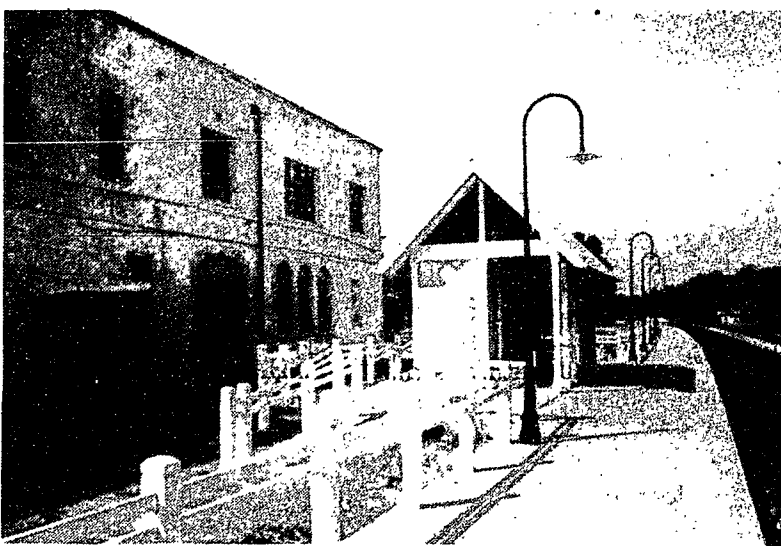

The Solid Waste District wants to buy another 91 acres of Section 16 land adjacent to the rubbish site from the School Board, so Trans-American can open the landfill.

In a December public hearing, several citizens objected to opening the landfill at Standard and to plans that would allow solid waste to be shipped in from nearby Washington and St. Tammany parishes in Louisiana.

Another problem left unresolved is whether to enforce some kind of zoning restrictions or building codes in rural areas north of Interstate 10.

Some residents are adamantly opposed to any restrictions while others think zoning and building and plumbing codes are sorely needed to protect the future value of their property.

Good news for depot; not so good at airport

The news was good for the former CSX depot (above) in Bay St. Louis as restoration of the historic depot began late in the year. Opening is scheduled for the early summer. The news was not so bright at Stennis International Airport (below), as Casino Magic pulled out its charter flights. The airport sits virtually idle today. (Echo staff photos by Richard Meek)

Mortgage bonds help first-time buyers

In an effort to offer the opportunity for a safe, decent and affordable home to every Mississippian, people will be able to take advantage of below market mortgage rates through the issuance of the Mississippi Home Corporation's $32.3 million bond program.

The unique feature is that the program offers a cash advance up to 4 percent of the loan amount to cover up-front cost of owning a home," Dianne Bolen, MHC deputy executive director, said.

The 4 percent cash advance allows the borrower to pay closing costs, origination fees and down payment fees. The bond loans will be available through participating lenders at a fixed rate of 7.95 percent for a 30-year term for borrowers who meet the credit criteria for a FHA, VA or RECD (formerly FmHA) insured loan.

"The demands for the loans are usually very high," Bolen added. "These mortgage loans will be offered on a first-come, first-served basis through participating lenders for first-time home buyers or persons who have not owned an interest in a principal residence in the past three years."

For information on the Mortgage Revenue Bond, contact your nearest lender, real estate agent or the Mississippi Home Corporation at (601) 354-6062.

Financial Focus

Majority of Americans worry about retirement

It's hard to believe, but the baby boom generation is heading for retirement. The oldest baby boomers will begin retiring in about 15 years. Yet more than half of the people scheduled to retire in the next 25 years don't think they'll have enough money.

That's the conclusion of a special report on retirement published recently by USA Today. The report, a joint effort by USA Today, CNN and Gallup Poll, discovered that when it comes to retirement planning, working Americans generally fall into four categories.

Twenty-six percent of those surveyed fell into the Contented Realist category. This is the wealthiest group, 70 percent of whom earn more than $50,000 per year. The majority of these people have a financial plan and an employer-sponsored retirement program. On top of that, they also saved an average of $5,000 last year. Understandably, the contented realists are not relying on Social Security to fund their retirement.

Eighteen percent of the survey respondents were classified as Cautious Optimists. While only a small percentage of this group earns more than $50,000 a year, 29 percent have a retirement plan, and 34 percent saved more than $5,000 last year. They're knowledgeable about retirement planning and look to their own resources as the major source of retirement income.

The Worriers comprise the largest category — 32 percent of those surveyed. Almost four in 10 worriers earn more than $50,000 annually, yet they say it's not enough for them to save.

Almost all of this group (98 percent) say they are worried about retirement; however, they're not doing much about it.

One-third of the worriers claim no knowledge of financial planning. This group relies heavily on Social Security and is resigned to a reduced standard of living after retirement.

Almost one-fourth of those surveyed are Woefully Unprepared. Members of this group have little hope for a comfortable retirement. Half earn less than $20,000 per year, have no job-sponsored retirement plan and make no personal contributions. Nearly four in 10 look to Social Security and part-time work to make ends meet during retirement.

The good news is that most of these wage-earners can still build a respectable retirement nest egg if they begin paying themselves first. A modest $25 monthly contribution into an IRA earning 7 percent annually could grow to about $14,000 in 20 years. The key is to make monthly deposits part of a regular budget — right up there with paying the mortgage or the electric bill.

No matter what category you fall into, you can have a comfortable retirement if you take matters into your own hands and begin planning today.

HELP WITH DIVORCE

Because divorce carries the potential for emotions to subvert reason, those considering the termination of their marriages should rely on the guidance and expertise of a lawyer. This recommendation is all the more valid if divorce involves children, substantial assets, or disputes over division of property. Even if a divorce is centered around fairly simple issues, those who engage in do-it-yourself divorces run the risk of having their opposites return to court later on, seeking to have the settlement agreements modified or declared void on the basis of unfairness or misunderstanding.

If you have questions about divorce, contact me ... I am here to help you. Early legal action may make all the difference in how well you and your family are protected. You can find me at 200 North Beach Blvd., Suite C. For legal advice you can count on, call 466-0999.

Have A Happy New Year!

A new beginning is certainly something to celebrate, but drinking and driving could spell the end of the festivities for a lifetime. That's why we urge everyone to follow these important guidelines for a safe and happy new year.

Best Wishes For A Happy New Year From All Of Us!

- 1 Host an alcohol-free party of your own, substituting exotic fruit drinks and fun activities for alcohol.
- 2 If you must drink, use common sense and eat plenty of food. Limit alcohol intake to one drink per hour.
- 3 Make driving arrangements beforehand. Appoint a designated driver, arrange for a taxi or make sleep-over plans.
- 4 Be a pal. Offer a lift to intoxicated party-goers or call a cab, but don't let them drive.
- 5 Watch out for the other guy. Report any suspicious driving at nearest toll booth or police phone.

Amanda Wilcox essay wins VFW top spot

Amanda Wilcox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Wilcox, was selected as the winner of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post No. 3253, Voice of Democracy essay contest.

Wilcox is a Bay Senior High student. Second place went to an entry by Jerry Daniels of St. Stanislaus, and Sara Smolensky of Our Lady Academy placed third.

Randolph Bourgeois, VFW Voice of Democracy program chairman, said there were five local contestants.

In District competition, all three top entries from the Bay VFW Post placed in the top 10.

The essay theme for 1995 was Answering America's Call.

The following is Ms. Wilcox's entry:

ANSWERING AMERICA'S CALL

By Amanda D. Wilcox

The people of this land did not inherit a nation, but they built a nation. It is a nation like no other. In the past America has been the envy of every country on Earth.

We have exhibited grandeur, prosperity, power, and freedom. However, we are a nation gone adrift. We are drifting from the course set by our founding fathers.

We must now ask the questions, "Where would we, who are citizens of the United States of America, be today if there had not been those who counted the cost of our freedom and willingly paid for it? Where will we be tomorrow if we do not answer America's call?"

America is calling for men and women of integrity to come forward today and pay the price to set a nation gone adrift back on course.

America has not been in the past, nor will it be in the future, a great nation because of its abundant natural resources, or because of its people of intellect.

America's greatness will always correspond to her holding fast to basic principles that were of foremost importance in her beginning and will be of paramount significance to her continued existence as a great nation.

America is calling for its citizenry to return to its roots of faith in God and loyalty to our flag and the freedoms it represents.

America is a nation built on Judeo-Christian ethics. These ethics guided the founding fathers as they wrote the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution.

We must answer America's call to embrace the foundational principles that guided our founding fathers. One principle is respect for human life. We are embarking on a course of reckless, selfish behavior that is dangerous to our nation.

Americans are now deciding who lives and who dies based on whether or not it is convenient for those who are living. Today America is calling for people to respect all human life, including the unborn, those who are handicapped, and the elderly.

Another principle is the work ethic. The welfare system of America has deprived much of America of its dignity. Dignity, self-respect, and hard work all go hand in hand.

Much of our nation's resources have been poured into a welfare system that has failed its citizens. Inner cities are still collapsing, children are going uneducated, and crime runs rampant.

We need people who will chart the course toward an America that encourages ambition, incentive, and hard work. Then, self-respect, dignity, and pride in accomplishment will be restored to its citizens.

A third principle is God-centered education. Our public schools have become moral jungles, academic nightmares, and a place where some students and teachers fear for their lives.

When America kicked God out of the front door of our schools, drugs, weapons, disrespect for authority, escalating teen pregnancies, and academic deterioration slipped in the back door.

America is calling for people who will set sail to return to its historic roots where the Ten Commandments were basic to the educational system.

I am convinced that America is calling young men and women from all across this great land to get aboard the ship and help steer America back on course.

We must set sail and turn toward restoring respect for government. America needs citizens who are as concerned about their duties and responsibilities as they are about their rights and privileges.

We need people of moral character and integrity who will guide America back to her spiritual roots. Alexander Solzhenitsyn once wrote, "to destroy a people you must first sever their roots."

I will be counted among those who answer the call. I will help guide America back to the great traditions and foundations upon which this country was built. In the words of Everett Hale, "I am only one, but I am one. I cannot do everything, but I can do something. What I can do, I should do and with the help of God, I will do!" I will answer America's call.

BACKACHE.

The little pain that lasts and lasts.

Back pain often starts small. Sometimes it disappears; usually it returns; often it gets worse. If left untreated, back pain can linger for years as a nagging reminder that all is not well.

Your job may be the culprit; you may sit all day hunched over a desk; you may lift heavy objects; you may be constantly bending over, caring for children. These are common causes of misaligned vertebrae of the spine and may be good reasons why you have back pain.

And because the spine is a complex system which is connected to other areas of the body, misaligned vertebrae in the spine can also be the reason for tension, stiffness, fatigue and more specifically back pain and headaches.

Our doctors at HODA CHIROPRACTIC CLINICS are specialists in back care. They can restore spinal vertebrae to their proper position, relieving pain and avoiding further complications.

Review

while Clay Williams finished a respectable second at the state meet to Moran with a jump of 6'8". Williams was just a junior in 1995.

In baseball, the Hawks and Tigers showed their prowess on the diamond. The Tigers had a great 1995 and made the playoffs while the Hawks had a strong year.

Kelton Ladner of Hancock and Marc Dupuy of Bay High were the dominant pitchers in the county. Ladner pitched a no-hitter against the Rocks while Dupuy was among the Coast's top performers in strikeouts and ERA.

While 1995 may have been a roller coaster ride for some teams and individuals, it sure proved to be strong year for the area schools.

Some athletes and their accomplishments may never be mentioned again and some will forever be remembered as the greatest in county history.

Some teams may have fallen from grace while others surged ahead or are making that long climb back to the top. Certain athletes possibly came out of the shadows to lead their teams while top performers from years past may have fallen back into the shadows.

No matter what the combination was, the year 1995 in high school gave us, the fans and parents, many memorable moments in time.

Krewe of Diamondhead crowns royalty at ball

The Krewe of Diamondhead held its 21st annual Coronation Ball at the Grand Casino Hotel in Gulfport on Saturday, Dec. 16 with the theme of "Carousel."

After the official blowing of the whistle by Captain Benny Mistretta, he entered the ballroom while the band played carnival music.

The 1996 royal court followed. Serving as maids and dukes were Harold Marshall and Jacques Rosenhauer; Paul Richards and Charlotte Hoffman-Inzinna; Harvey Comfort and Betty Reddock; and Lynn Cobena and Joy Cobena.

The maids were attired in ball gowns of different colors. The dukes wore tuxedos with the baldric in the matching color of his maid's gown.

Before their majesties were introduced, a short review of the 1995 carnival season was given by master of ceremony Jerry Reshew. He recalled the theme was "Festivals of the World" and acknowledged their court.

King Ali-i Henua XX Henry Kibler and Queen Lou Lamen-dola entered into the ballroom to the tune of "If Ever I Cease to Love," the official song of Mardi Gras. The queen's silver beaded ball gown with a short train was fashioned especially for her for this occasion.

Reigning over the 1996 carnival season will be King Ali-i Henua XXI Berlon Dennis and Queen Alice Burkhardt. The queen wore a royal blue and gold ball gown that was accented at the waist with gold poinsettias.

The officers are Mistretta, captain; Reshew, president; Nell Dennis, secretary; Jerry Bourg, treasurer; Chris Arnos, parade lieutenant; Kibler, ways and means lieutenant; Hilda L. Bourg, publicity lieutenant; and Henry Burkhardt, social lieutenant.

The decoration committee was chaired by Nell Dennis. Billie Bahner was recognized for her assistance in the coronation tableau.

Past Krewe of Diamondhead kings and queens who were present were 1976 King Joe Salvatore; 1984 Queen Lorraine Heier; 1985 King Vincent Almerico Sr. and Queen Ann Neff; 1986 King Tom Satterlee and Queen Laura Almerico; 1989 Queen Dot Hoskins; 1990 King Ronald Bankston and Queen Linn Godard; 1991 King Ted Godard and Queen Evelyn Kibler; 1992 King Paul Snemyr and Queen Gisela Rainey; 1994 King Bill Bahner and Queen Billie Bahner.

Music was provided by "Take Five" for the ceremony and for the dinner-dance that followed.

On Saturday morning, Mistretta presented the royal flags to the 1996 royal couple on behalf of the members of the krewe. The flags will be flown throughout the carnival season signifying their royalty.

The Mardi Gras Ball will be Saturday, Feb. 10 at the Grand Casino Hotel in Gulfport, and the parade will be Saturday, Feb. 17 at noon. The theme is "Legends of Old."

Alice Burkhardt and Berlon Dennis

A WORD OF THANKS!
All of us here at St. Stanislaus wish to express our heartfelt thanks to the citizens of Bay St. Louis and Waveland who may have been inconvenienced during the construction of our new Beach Boulevard overpass. We appreciate your patience, and we are sorry if we caused you any trouble. As the old timers know, this overpass replaces the original one built in 1946 and destroyed by Hurricane Camille in 1969. The new overpass will provide added safety for our students and campers for many generations yet to come. For 142 years St. Stanislaus has been a real asset to this community, providing jobs for its citizens, business for its merchants, and education for its youth. This new overpass is another concrete example of our continued commitment to serve this community and its people.
Sincerely yours,
